RE: DumontJanks Master Plan Summary

Following our year-long engagement with DumontJanks, I am pleased to share that the final summary is now available.

This document represents the culmination of collaboration and reflects our shared vision for a stronger and more sustainable campus environment. Key highlights include identifying critical connections between people, departments and programs, developing actionable strategies to enhance collaborative relationships and providing a comprehensive roadmap for campus growth.

I want to express my gratitude to Vice Provost Cindy Akers, Associate Vice President Sean Childers and the dedicated working group. To our faculty, staff and students who participated in surveys and the co-mapping exercise last year, your insights were instrumental in shaping this plan.

The goal is to view future projects through the lens of the DumontJanks report's guiding principles. I encourage you to review the summary to better understand how these strategies will contribute to Texas Tech's future development.
