Dear Red Raiders,

Our wonderful team in Hospitality Services has always had stringent processes in place regarding food safety and continuously evolve with best practices to better serve our campus community. With a focus on keeping as many dining options open and available as possible, they are implementing a few new changes to make operations more efficient and safer for all guests.

Texas Tech will continue to follow the latest guidance from state and local leaders and at this time that will mean a limited amount of seating in certain dining locations. There will also be efforts to move to contactless options that eliminate and reduce person-to-person contact as well as the need to wait in line to order and pay.

All of the changes that you can expect this fall are featured in the video and our plans for on-campus dining.
