Office of International Affairs

November 24, 2020

Dear Texas Tech University Community:

With the current surge in COVID-19 and new restrictions including curfews, state of emergencies, and lockdowns worldwide, we are forced to cancel all Spring 2021 study abroad programs as of today (November 24, 2020). This proactive measure was considered essential to ensure the health and safety of all our students, faculty, and staff. We understand that this decision is coming late, but we were hoping circumstances would be better to allow us to continue with study abroad offerings in the Spring. Please contact the Office of International Affairs' Study Abroad unit (studyabroad@ttu.edu) to know about our future study abroad options and to address other questions you may have.

We plan to resume our regular study abroad offerings as soon as it is safe to do so. Thank you for your cooperation and patience in working with us through these challenging times. In the meantime, please take care of yourself and others.

Sincerely,
